State of the Profession Address Delivered by Treasury Strategies

Chicago, Illinois (January 26, 2007) - Treasury Strategies, Inc. has released its annual State of the Profession Address, an annual message discussing the state of the Treasury industry, which includes a look forward to key issues for the coming year.

Mike Gallanis, a Partner of Treasury Strategies and leader of the firm's Corporate Segment, delivered the address. He discussed how Treasury has expanded its scope over the course of the last several years with increased responsibilities in working capital, regulatory compliance, and risk management.

In 2007, Gallanis asserted that Treasury must capitalize on their new, strategic role within the organization. A task that can be accomplished with a new agenda focused on three key areas:

1. Globalization
2. Efficiency
3. Organization

The Address was met with great interest from the over 200 industry professionals and friends of the firm who attended the presentation.
